

English Wine

Mark Lane,
wine writer.

Devon wines have certainly come a long way; amongst the county's green rolling hills are lush vineyards, bursting with grapes that are made into award-winning whites, reds, rosés and fizzies. There are nine vineyards on the map overleaf, producing a variety of different wines. For a great day out and a taste of a fruity Bacchus, youthful Madeleine Angevine or complex Pinor Noir visit your nearest vineyard – they all have something unique to offer.

So why not drop into Yearlstone Vineyard in Mid Devon close to the famous 18th Century Bickleigh Mill and have a bite to eat whilst sampling some fantastic wines? Head across to the ancient monastic Crediton to Down St Mary Vineyard for a fizz that is every bit as classy as Champagne. To the east are the small vineyards of Willhayne and Highcroft which are producing some very good wines. Near Exeter is Manstree Vineyard where you can pick up a bottle of great wine and in season pick your own soft fruit. The cellar for Pebblebed Vineyards is in nautical Topsham – a great place to pick up a sophisticated rosé! Just south of Exeter, near Powderham Castle, is Kenton Vineyard which is quickly gaining a reputation for excellence across its range of wines. Further south along the coast road to Teignmouth is Old Walls Vineyard where good food and great wines can be sampled. In foodie South Devon you will find the legendary Sharpham Vineyard nestled on a bend in the serpentine River Dart which is famous for its wine and cheese. Whether it's a quick tasting visit or a week-long wine tour you will be made very welcome at Devon Vineyards.

Be sure to contact the vineyards first to check opening times and directions.
